The Lady Taken to the House of a Friend Passport and Escapes on a Spanish Line Steamer to New York

"I was commissioned to go to Cuba and deliver Senorita Cisneros from the filthy prison. I started from New York August 28th, determined to free the woman, though I did not see my way clear as to the adoption of any plan. After reaching Havana, many plans suggested themselves to me, but each one proved impracticable. I tried to bribe the jailor or alcalde, but he wanted $16,000 for the job, and positive assurance that he and his family could get to the United States. This was too rich a proposition for me."

Mr. Decker repeated the story of the rescue from the jail as already told in his dispatches and then related what happened after the girl was out of the prison. He said:

When Senorita Cicneros entered our shanty adjoining the jail, we let her rest a few moments, and then took her to a carriage waiting outside and drove to the house of a friend. The friend was holding a reception that night, which was a part of the plan. The man who drove the carriage was one of the conspirators. Senorita Cisneros was exhausted from excitement when she reached the house, but she did not give way. On Thursday morning she was taken to the home of a friend where she remained in secrecey until Saturday afternoon.

To reach the steamer for New York she was obliged to walk down Obispo street, the principal thoroughfare of Havana, at a time when the street was crowded, and yet take her time. and smoke a cigar. If she had skulked about the back streets she would immediately have been suspected. It was over a mile from the house to the pier. She had a passport made out under an | Seven Tobacco Prize Houses and Eight assumed name. All the steamships anchor out in the stream. Senorita Cisneros walked down from the house clad as a ranchman, and my companion and I followed behind. She sauntered along leisurely and once in a while turned about to see if we were following. We could see that she was under a strain. She got on the launch and we waited and when the launch returned from the vessel and she was not on it, we knew that the scheme had worked like a charm.

"The day after the jail break the town was astir over the escape of Senorita Cisneros. A house-to-house search was begun and would have been kept up had not a telegram from Minister Dupuy de Lome at Washington informed Weyler that the girl was on the high seas and expected any day in New York. Then Weyler was mad. He threw the jailer, Jose Quintan, into jail; whereupon the jairer told about my attempting to bribe him. This, in connection with the surmise of De Lome, placed suspicion on me. I gave it out that I was going to take a steamer for Mexico. There was only one steamer leaving Sunday, and that was a Spanish steamer. I waited for instructions from New York, and had almost made my mind up to start Sunday, instructions or no instructions. My instructions came, happily. My passport was made out in the name of Karl Decker. In order to take the Panama Sunday night, and run the gauntlet, it was necessary to get my passport vised and stamped with the seal of the secretary of the captain general. I knew that my passport would never be signed and I learned that an order for arrest was determined on and that I was to be arrested at 5 o'clock Monday morning. I was in a bad pickle. I got a glimpse of the writing of Senor Carjoval, the secretary of Weyler, and copied it so that I had it down fine. Then I forged the vis. signature. I determined to do without the seal. At the last moment I went to the wharf and took the launch for the steamship. The inspector looked at my passport and asked where the seal was. I assumed a nonchalant air as best I could and told him that Senor Carjoval was at the Ingleteere hotel, and having no seal, he signed his name to a statement saying it was all right. The inspector hesitated and showed the signature to another inspector, and he said it was all right, and I was safe. Spanish authorities never thought for a moment that I would take a Spanish steamer. Nearly all the Americans take the American line. They did not think to guard the Panama and watch for me. They arrest all prisoners at 5 o'clock in the morning. They were sure I would be in town on Monday and they were fooled." Senorita Cisneros received a number of visitors at the Hotel Waldorf today, among them General Julio Sanguilly, Henry George, Tom. L. Johnson and ex-Postmaster Charles W.

The Dona A. Briggs Boarded by Customs Officers

Lewis, Del., October 14 .- The United States customs officers this afternoon boarded the alleged filibustering schooner Donna A. Briggs, which has been lying at this port for several days. The customs officers refuse to discuss their visit to the Briggs, and the deputy is now awaiting instructions from the government.

The Donna A. Briggs arrived here about a week ago from Norfolk, with a cargo of coal for the fish packers, After the coal had been discharged, the schooner anchored in the harbor, apparently awaiting orders. The captain of the alleged filibuster refuses to talk of the movements of his vessel.

Wilson's Attack on Russell and Butler

(Special to The Messenger.) Raleigh, N. C., October 14.-Otho Wilson says editorially in The Hayseeder this afternoon that only persons who are Russell's friends and his partners in the conspiracy expect to jointly profit by his schemes. "Republicans claim Russell is not a republican, but a populist. This we repudiate. We are glad to be rid of the friendship of Butler and Russell, and if it will enable the state to cast you into outer darkness we will be content." 'Wilson says Butler got all the populists to agree to support Pritchard and then later cursed out those who would not break that agreement. Statement From Judge Camden's Grandson Glenville, W. Va., October 14.-Camden Somers makes this statement for publica tion: "I have no comments to make concerning the merits of the case beyond my former statement regarding the matter prior to the present trial, whereby unscrupulous counsel and witnesses for the defense tortured, twisted, and lied about me. I will hereafter studiously avoid giving them even a shadow of an excuse to resort to similar tactics, when the case again comes up for hearing. I have been actuated in this matter alone by a desire to protect the estate of my grandfather from the merciless rapes of conspiring mercenaries, and to prove to the world that Judge Camden in his declining years, instead of losing that sterling sense of justice and love of his children, which had always characterized quarantines against Galveston and the life of this noble old man, was the pitiful victim of misplaced confidence in those by whom he was surrounded in his old age, and that his mental integrity, which he retained until the last, compelled a resort to forged processes to blacken his fair name and steal the birthrights of his children. I think the world now knows this.

RECIPROCITY COMMISSION

The President Appoints Hon. John A. Kasson, of Iowa to Perfect Reciprocity Agree ments With Foreign Countries Under the New Tariff Act

Washington, October 14.-The president has decided to appoint a special commissioner with plenary powers to carry into effect the reciprocity provisions of sections 3 an 4 of the tariff act approved July 24, 1897. It was found upon making an investigation of the matter that the regular force of the department of state is at present so overcrowded with pressing business that serious delay in carrying out the expressed wish of congress would inevitably follow, if in addition to the usual routine work of the department, its officers were required to perform the special examinations and negotiations essential to carry forward the will of congress as expressed in the sections above referred to. Moreover, the pressure for early and consistent action in the arrangement of measures of reciprocity has been very great, from foreign countries as well as from our own citizens.

The interest of the president in reciprocity is especially keen, and during sided, toasted the president. his connection with the tariff legislation of 1890, while chairman of the of that law of reciprocity provision was inclusive of his determination to foster commerce by this means.

News From the Yellow Fever

Montgomery, Ala., October 14.-The board of health today issued the following: "The board of health desires to be entirely honest with the people of Montgomery. Careful analysis of the symptoms of the few cases reported as suspicious shows there is not a case that is at all typical of yellow fever, and not a single case is seriously sick. As soon as a case occurs that shows the clear impress of the disease we shall tell our people of it. We have been assisted in our conferences in this matter by a large number of our most eminent physicians, who have the confidence of the community." Mobile, Ala., October 14.-Five new cases and one death, that of Michael Geney, were announced today. The record is: Total cases to date 147, deaths 21, recoveries 86, under treatment 40. The board of health has received notice that there are eight cases of yellow rever at Flomation Junction, Ala., seventy miles north of Mobile, on the Lcuisville and Nashville railroad. There are ten cases at Wagar, Ala., on the Mobile and Birmingham railroad, ard one death there. New Orleans, October 14.-It was the same old story here today. The yellow fever situation showed no decline in the number of cases reported. The death column was about normal. What was said in this report last night was borne out by today's figures. There has been no increase in the malignancy of the disease. Yesterday's record of nine deaths was exceptional. It was o'clock tonight before a third as many deaths were reported for today as had been in the previous twenty-four hours. The existing conditions are not favorable for the quick stamping out of the disease. The weather is warm and sultry and unusual for the season and if it keeps up there will be little improve-

yesterday morning a man drove from one of the depots to the Jefferson hotel and registered as G. Coe, of New York. After breakfast he ordered a cab and spent the rest of the day driving about the city. Late at night he ordered his cabman to drive out to Seven Pines and it was in the neighborhood of the national cemetery that the driver first discovered he was attempting suicide by gashing himself with a knife. The driver implored him to desist and lashing his horses into a gallop started towards the city. When he arrived at the corner of Twenty-fifth and Broad streets he met Policeman Parkinson and told him of his patron's condition. The policeman entered the cab and ordered the driver to proceed to the first station. Here it was learned that the man had drunk a quantity of laudanum, and as that did not kill him, he commenced stabbing himself in the throat. He had inflicted eighteen wounds upon his neck and several upon his wrists. He was taken to the retreat for the sick and it is now said that his real name is Corbert, and that he is from Brooklyn, N. Y., though the physicians will not give his initials and address. It is stated from other sources that the man is a contractor, and had lost heavily in contracts and was much involved, but would go back home and fight the matter out. His wife has been telegraphed for.

It was learned definitely tonight that the would-be suicide is George Coebert. a contractor of Brooklyn. He says he contracted for fifty houses in that city and lost money on them. His physicians say he will be well enough to return home the day after tomorrow.

GOVERNOR ATKINSON TALKS

He Expresses Confidence in the Innocence of His Wife-He Shows the Prosecution to be Malleious and False

Glenville, W. Va., October 14 .- Governor Atkinson, who has hitherto kept still about the trial of his wife, has made a statement of which the following are the principal points:

"I have hitherto said nothing for publication in this case, except to merely state that I knew the prosecution was actuated by malice and hatred. It is a family quarrel, and the public knows that they are the most bitter disputes. I have heard every sentence of the testimony given in the case. Independent of the law, which, in my judgment, does not class this case as a probable forgery, and independent also of the fact that, in my opinion, it was error to admit testimony on other matters which cannot be directly connected with the crime set out in the indictment, I am clearly of the opinion that several witnesses and, indeed, all the real testimony upon which the case hinged, had been induced to testify for a consideration. "I am led to this conclusion by the demeanor of the witnesses while testifying on the witness stand and by the fact and circumstances connected with their testimony, coupled with the further fact that offers were made to other witnesses or their representatives to pay money to them or be given lands without the payment of money thereafter, provided they would testify against the defendant, Mrs. Atkinson.

"The evidence brought out in this trial also shows that Mrs. Atkinson, prior to her marriage to Judge Camden, received an anonymous letter warning her not to marry said Camden; that at the time the will of Judge Camden was about to be probated various other letters were written to her threatening newspaper publication unless a large sum of money was paid, and which, if paid, it was promised nothing would be said or published relative to her: that prior to her marriage to me another similar anonymous letter was sent to her threatening her with other troubles, including newspaper publications, which would be thrown across her pathway. The demands made in these anonymous blackmailing letters were not accorded to nor complied with, and the result was that the vilest of vile publications appeared against her in newspapers. The man who inspired all these publications is well known to be Camden Summers, the grandson of Judge Camden, the individual upon whose testimony the indictment against Mrs. Atkinson was solely found, and who appeared as the principal prosecuting witness in this case.

she is guilty of no crime whatever, and most certainly the crime of aiding and abetting in uttering the forged papers charged against her in the indictment was in no sense proven in the trial of this case."
